

Last Communion – Teddy Swims

I used to believe heaven was bulletproof
Only God can turn a red light blue
Been cuttin' me deep, dyin' to talk to you
Only love can push the blade right through
This love's an orphan callin' on deaf ears
And there's no afterlife, but if there is
It's late in the night time, so it's the Right time
For sleep talking, sleep talking
And now the heart's shot dead
Buried under each and every word unsaid
Twenty-four hours since 'Goodbye, God bless'
'Fore we let the ghost get away
One last communion, babe
So I let it go, nobody else around
Couldn't watch forever fall face down
So I turned my head the second it hit the ground
And I felt it, but it made no sound
This love's an orphan callin' on deaf ears
And there's no afterlife, but if there is
It's late in the night time, so it's the Right
Time
For sleep talking, sleep talking
It was a grand old age
Oh, and yes, I know that nothing
Gold can stay
But I couldn't bring myself to turn that page
Before I drop a kiss on the grave
One last communion, babe
One last communion, babe
One last, one last, one last
One last, one last, one last
One last communion, babe
It was a childish game

Who can light a candle in the crying rain?
No one can know about the mess we made
I'm scrubbing, praying that the Blood don't stain
I only whisper your name
One last communion, babe
One last communion, babe
(One last communion, babe)
One last, one last
